The Dragon Boat Festival, also called the Duanwu Festival, is celebrated on the fifth day of the fifth month according to the Chinese lunar calendar. For thousands of years, the festival has been marked by eating Zongzi and racing dragon boats.

The festival is best known for its dragon boat races, especially in the southern provinces where there are many rivers and lakes. This boat race commemorates the death of Qu Yuan, an honest minister who is said to have committed suicide by (21) _____ in a river.

Qu was a minister of the State of Chu during the Warring States Period (475—221BC). He was upright, (22) _____ and highly esteemed for his wise counsel that brought peace and prosperity to the state. However, when a dishonest and corrupt prince slandered Qu, he was disgraced and dismissed from office. Realizing that the country was now in the hands of evil and corrupt officials, Qu grabbed a large stone and leapt into the Miluo River on the fifth day of the fifth lunar month. Nearby fishermen (23) _____ to try and save him but were unable to even recover his body. Thereafter, the state declined and was eventually conquered by the State of Qin.

The people of Chu who mourned the death of Qu threw rice into the river to feed his ghost every year on the fifth day of the fifth lunar month. But one year, the spirit of Qu appeared and told the mourners that a huge reptile in the river had stolen the rice. The spirit then advised them to wrap the rice (24) _____ and bind it with five different-coloured threads before tossing it into the river.

During the Duanwu Festival, a glutinous rice pudding called Zongzi is eaten to symbolize the rice offerings to Qu. Ingredients such as beans, lotus seeds, chestnuts, pork fat and the golden yolk of a salted duck egg are often added to the glutinous rice. The pudding is then (25) _____ in reed leaves, bound with a string and boiled for hours.

Read the following passage and fill in each blank with one word. Choose the correct word in one of the following three ways: according to the context, by using the correct form of the given word, or by using the given letter(s) of the word. Remember to write the answers on the answer sheet.

The only one of the Seven Wonders of the Ancient World that still exists is also the (46) _____ (old) of them all. The Great Pyramid at Giza in Egypt was built sometime around 2560 BC. It was already two thousand years old (47) _____ work began on the next Wonder, the Hanging Gardens of Babylon. The age of the Great Pyramid—more than 4,500 years—is so great that it seems almost as if it has been there for ever, and that it will last forever. In the words of the Arab proverb, “Man fears Time, but Time fears the Pyramids”.

But age is only one of the reasons why the Great Pyramid is so extraordinary. Another is its size: it is by far the largest of the Seven Wonders and, except for frontier walls such as the Great Wall of China, it is the largest single thing made of stone that has ever been built. Then, too, there is the (48) _____ (amaze) effort and skill that were needed to cut all that stone and put it together into what is a near-perfect geometrical form, with only simple tools and technology. In fact, if we were asked today for a list of Seven Wonders, ancient or modern, the Great Pyramid would certainly still be on it. But why was such an extraordinary thing ever built? What exactly is it?

The Great Pyramid, like the other larger pyramids in Egypt, is the burial place, or tomb, of one of the country's ancient kings. During the period in Egyptian history known as the Old Kingdom (3100—2180 BC), more than twenty pyramids were built at different places along the River Nile. Three of the larger ones are at Giza, which is now a suburb of Cairo. Like all the other pyramids, they are (49) _____ the west bank of the Nile, with only the desert and the setting sun beyond. To the ancient Egyptians, the west was the home of the dead. This was where the sun-god Ra, who sailed across the sky in his boat during the day, began his nightly (50) jo _____ down through the Underworld.

For a person's spirit to survive death, the Egyptians believed the body had to be (51) pre _____. This was because the spirit of the dead person left the body at night, but had to return to it in the morning for food and rest. Without these things, the soul would be lost. Members of a family, or their priests, would therefore place food in the tomb of a dead relative, together with furniture and the other (52) _____ (necessity) of life. In order that the returning spirit would recognise its home, the body had to be kept as lifelike as possible, which is why the Egyptians perfected the art of embalming bodies to produce what we now call mummies. We do not know what the ordinary people, who could not (53) af _____ to pay for embalming, thought would happen to their spirits after their bodies had decayed. Perhaps they simply accepted that, in death as in (54) _____, they would not be as lucky as their rulers.

Their king, or pharaoh, was considered to be a god—a son, in fact, of the sun-god Ra—and his body had to be especially well protected after death. We can therefore understand why the pyramid which was his royal tomb was so large: by placing the mummy of the dead pharaoh deep inside such a huge structure, the (55) _____ (build) thought that no one would ever be able to disturb it. The shape of the structure was important too: a pyramid represented the rays of the sun as they spread out and touched the earth.

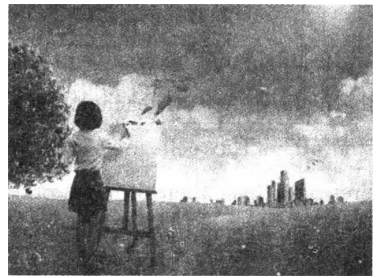

Part IV Reading Comprehension (30 marks)

There are three passages in this part. Each passage is followed by several questions. Respond to the questions using information from the passage. Remember to write the answers on the answer sheet.

Section A (10 marks)

Questions 56 ~ 60 are based on the following passage.

Jeanne Lavale is an 18-year-old student at the Art Deco College of Art and Design in Antwerp, Belgium. One of the world's major seaports, the Port of Antwerp is on the Schelde River in Belgium about 55 miles from the North Sea. During the period of her college, she has gained her professional course of outstanding achievements, profound knowledge, and years of scholarship. She has also mastered art, music, drama, literature and other aspects of the basic theory and basic knowledge. She has strong organizational ability and social ability, works well independently. And together with other people, she has developed team spirit, and has achieved outstanding results in various activities.

She is hoping to be chosen as “Antwerp Artist of the Year” with her paintings and sculptures. She entered the college two years ago at the age of sixteen. She has been painting and sculpting since she was eight years old. She was interested in painting and sculpting at that time because she could express her thoughts in her works. She was determined to be an artist in the future when she was very young.

To enter the “Antwerp Artist of the Year” competition, she has to present two paintings and one three-dimensional piece. While studying at the college she has completed twenty paintings using various media-oils, watercolours, acrylics and pen-and-ink. She has also produced a collection of wood and metal sculptures representing changes in the technical world over the last fifty years. Although her favourite sculpture is called “Space Rocket”, she feels that this is not the one to choose for the competition, so she has decided to send in “Machine Mind” instead.

Her paintings for the competition, both watercolours, will be from her collection “Friends”, and she has chosen “Julie”, a portrait of her best friend Julie Vasey, who is her classmate and likes to read romantic novels. Jeanne is not interested in romantic novels, but she added beauty to the painting and painted such a vivid portrait. Her second choice is a view of Herentals, the town where she grew up. It is called simply “Home”.

If she wins the competition she will get an opportunity for her paintings or sculpture to be shown in galleries all over Europe. There is also a cash prize of 2,000 euros. This would help her to continue working as an artist after leaving college, and also to fulfill her ambition to start a painting workshop for young children.

The competition rules require the paintings and sculpture to be ready for collection on either 17 or 19 July, and the organisers will contact the college to set a convenient time. Jeanne needs to give the name of her art teacher, Mrs V. Benet, whose contact telephone number is 571–9300, extension 403. The college is at 27 Tervurenlaan in Antwerp. Alternatively, entrants may, if they prefer, deliver their own artworks to the organisers during the weekend of 14 and 15 July. In this case, they should go to the Kattenberg Studio at 5 Avenue Boitsfort, Antwerp, between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. on either day. After consulting Mrs Benet, Jenne has decided to ask for her artworks to be collected from the college on the first of the two possible dates.

Questions 56 ~ 60

Section B (10 marks)

Questions 61 ~ 65 are based on the following passage.

The Republic of Seychelles(塞舌尔) is a group of 115 islands of truly striking beauty, lying in the Indian Ocean 1,800 km east of Kenya. Popular with tourists, Seychelles is also a natural sanctuary for an amazing diversity of bird and animal life, such as the world's smallest frog, the heaviest land tortoise and the only flightless bird of the Indian Ocean.

Culture and cuisine

The Seychellois, numbering around 90,000 people, are a colourful and harmonious blend of different races. People from almost every race on earth have at one time or another contributed something of their own customs and cultures to the islands. This diversity is clearly reflected in Seychellois cooking. From Asian influences come delicious stir fries and fiery curries, while the European influence, especially French, is apparent in the use of herbs and garlic. Some of the best fish in the world can be found here—the popular red snapper or “bourzwa” is favourite with both locals and tourists.

Environment

Unique plants and animals have evolved in Seychelles to produce some of the rarest examples of flora and fauna in the world. Seychelles also boasts two World Heritage sites: Aldabra Atoll and the Vallee de Mai, where the magnificent coco de mer palm rows. The government has declared 46% of the total land mass (452 sq km) as national parks, nature reserves or protected areas. A further 228 sq km have been designated as Marine National Park to safeguard marine creatures and habitat. As land is scarce, waste disposal can be a problem. Where possible, therefore, rubbish such as toothpaste cartons and empty shampoo bottles should be taken back to the visitor's country of origin.

Weather

Seychelles enjoys a pleasant tropical climate with an average humidity of 75%. The islands lie outside the cyclone belt and there are no extremes of weather. When the south-east trade winds blow between May and September, there is generally less rainfall, but rougher seas. The north-west trade winds, which blow from November to March, bring the wet season. From March to May and September to November, the seas are calmest, with the best visibility and conditions.

Regulations for tourists

For immigration clearance, tourists need a valid passport, a return or onward ticket, proof of accommodation, and sufficient funds for the duration of their stay. A valid yellow fever vaccination certificate is also required from travellers who have recently come from an infected area.

Questions 61 ~65

Answer the following questions with the information given in the passage.

61. What typically reflects Seychelles' cultural diversity?
62. What are visitors asked to do to reduce pollution on the islands?
63. What is the weather like in Seychelles between November and March?
64. Which are the two driest months of the year in Seychelles?
65. Which disease is considered highly infectious in Seychelles?

Section C (10 marks)

Questions 66 ~ 70 are based on the following passage.

Todd Benjamin, CNN Anchor: European Union lawmakers have set their sights on the food industry. Manufacturers have been given a deadline to stop advertising junk food to children. Brussels is threatening to introduce legislation if they don't comply amid concerns over rising obesity levels in Europe. But as Diana Muriel reports, bad habits die hard.

Diana Muriel, CNN Correspondent: Working Mum Vicky Whitehouse has decided on a treat for her family this Friday lunch time. Just around the corner from her Derbyshire home in the north of England, is a drive-through McDonald's. A nurse in a big city hospital, Vicky knows the value of wholesome, home-cooked food for the family. But one-year-old Theo doesn't. Although, as Vicky points out, it's not so much the food her children care about.

Vicky Whitehouse, Mother: I think really it's the toys that come with it. I think as soon as children walk into places like this, the big display of toys will appeal to them. Toys such as Barbie and Action Man are always positioned near the counter so you've got to walk past them to actually order the food.

Muriel: Experts like Professor Tim Lang of London City University say the Whitehouse family are simply victims of ruthless industry.

Tim Lang, London City University: The food industry is targeting more and more fatty sugary foods at children. Children are not given proper guidelines by their parents. The marketing industry does brilliant, very witty, very sophisticated advertisements. And the net effect is a rapid change in food culture.

Muriel: But it's this kind of culture European lawmakers are eager to reform. European food manufacturers and retailers have been given one year to stop advertising junk food to children and improve labeling. If they don't, then new legislation could force them to comply. Some manufacturers aren't waiting for legal action. Kraft Foods announced a change in global policy earlier this month. It will stop marketing products like its Oreo cookies to children from now on. But much of the rest of the industry invests millions of dollars each year to convince kids to consume their products using takeaway toys to increase sales. The result has been an explosion in childhood obesity across the region and fatty food is a hidden killer.

Lang: If they get fat, very quickly their arteries start clogging up and diseases one would expect them to die of in very old age start appearing younger. Diabetes, strokes, cardiovascular diseases start getting laid down very early. And that's why everyone is now worried. We have for the first time, epidemiological evidence that the children may die before their parents.

Muriel: Vicky is careful to restrict the amount of junk food her kids eat. And she doesn't like the taste of it, herself. But so far, the rest of Europe shows little sign of losing its appetite for fast food and it may take a change in the law to tackle the problem.

Questions 66 ~ 70

Complete the summary below with information from the passage, using no more than three words for each blank.

European Union lawmakers are targeting the food industry. Food manufacturers have been given a deadline to stop (66) _____ to children. If they don't comply, new (67) _____ could force them to. But much of the industry invests millions of dollars each year to convince kids to consume their products. These companies use take-away toys to (69) _____. Obese children have been found more likely to suffer from diabetes, strokes and cardiovascular (70) _____.

Part V Translation (15 marks)

Section A (5 marks)

Translate the following paragraph into Chinese. Remember to write the answers on the answer sheet.

71. It is a good thing that young men should begin at the beginning and occupy the most subordinate positions. Many of the leading businessmen had a serious responsibility thrust upon them at the very threshold of their career. They were introduced to the broom, and spent the first hours of their business lives sweeping out the office. But if by chance the professional sweeper is absent any morning, the boy who has the genius of the future partner in him will not hesitate to try his hand at the broom. It does not hurt the newest comer to sweep out the office if necessary.

Section B (10 marks)

Translate the following sentences into English by using the hints given in brackets. Remember to write the answers on the answer sheet.

(72) 读一本书恰似坠入爱河，你得全身心投入进去。 (devote oneself into) 翻开书页之时，从封底或从封面的简介中，你对它或许有些许了解。但谁知道呢？那些只言片语并不总是正确的。

有时候，人们在自我推销时是一种形象，等你深入了解后，你会发现他们又完全是另一种模样了。(73) 要么是低质量的书配有出色的市场推销，要么是故事的叙述流于表面。

(in a superficial way) 然而阅读过半后，你方才发觉：这本书是出乎意料地妙不可言，这种感觉只能自己去感悟！或许它并不是你想象中的伟大的作品，奈何半途弃读会使你觉得不安。(74) 或许，它真的很糟糕，你要么硬着头皮读下去，要么立刻放弃。 (force oneself to do)

(75) 当然，正如生活中总会有新鲜事发生，你也会有你所喜爱的新书。 (to one's liking) 这本书，它陈列在书店某隅的书架上，它经人辗转，真的就像是在等你捧起。它在等着向你低语：“我会伴你左右。”

书越翻越薄，你也越读越慢，心里想着要细细含英咀华。此刻，它确定无疑就是你永恒的最至爱了。(76) 你总想一读再读，每次捧起它都感觉好像从未读过。 (as if)

情动至深那刻，你便知道自己再也割舍不下它了。

Section B (20 marks)

93. Every weekday, air pollution and traffic jam in the city you stay in are at their worst during Rush Hour. To combat this, new transport measures are being introduced by authorities, including the building of new tram lines and ambitious plans for cycle tracks and new pedestrian zones. Besides these measures, there has been a proposal, supported by the mayor, that public transport should be free on several days a month. Do you agree or disagree to these solutions? Give reasons for your answer including any relevant opinions from your own knowledge or experience.

Write an article of at least 160 words to express your opinions on the answer sheet.
