

2022 年(下半年)全国大学生英语竞赛 C 类初赛试题

2022 National English Competition for College Students

(Type C—Preliminary)

(Total: 150 marks Time: 120 minutes)

Part I Listening Comprehension (30 marks)

Section A (5 marks)

In this section, you will hear five short conversations. Each conversation will be read only once. At the end of each conversation, one question will be asked, and you have fifteen seconds to read the four choices marked A, B, C and D, and decide which is the best answer. Then mark the corresponding letter on the answer sheet with a single line through the centre.

1. A. When the man went to Wales.
C. When they were studying at school.
2. A. Her university is the best.
C. She has bought lots of clothes.
3. A. He got hurt in a football match.
B. He failed to pass his final exams.
C. He broke his leg when he went snowboarding.
D. He had a big quarrel with his mother that night.
4. A. Lonely and bored.
B. Calm and peaceful.
C. Depressed and annoyed.
D. Cheerful and comfortable.
5. A. Shop from secure websites.
B. Go out window shopping.
C. Take good care of her credit card details.
D. Ask her best friend to buy things for her.

Section B (10 marks)

In this section, you will hear two long conversations. Each conversation will be read only once. At the end of each conversation, there will be a one-minute pause.

Conversation One

Listen to the conversation. Then read the four choices marked A, B, C or D, and decide which is the best answer according to what you hear. Then mark the corresponding letter on the answer sheet with a single line through the centre.

6. What's the woman's job?

A. She is a course assistant.

B. She is a telephone operator.

C. She is a school principle.

D. She is a department chair.

7. Why does the man make the phone call?

A. To ask for a professor's information.

B. To enrol in the Office Skills course.

C. To apply for college admission.

D. To cancel his short computing class.

8. Why can't the man join this ongoing class?

A. There aren't any vacancies.

B. He doesn't have any qualifications.

C. He can't afford the tuition fee.

D. He didn't take the entrance examination.

9. Which course does the man finally enrol in?

A. The next Office Skills course.

B. A short writing course.

C. A short computer course.

D. Next term's regular computer course.

10. How will the woman send the enrolment form to the man?

A. By email.

B. By express delivery.

C. By regular mail.

D. By fax.

Conversation Two

Listen to the conversation and complete the sentences with one word for each blank according to what you hear. Then write the answers on the answer sheet.

11. The woman has examined Mr White's _____ and is going over some details with him to make it look better.

12. Mr White describes himself as a "handyman" because he did some maintenance work including repairing things, painting and some _____.

13. The woman suggests Mr White _____ his abilities and experience clearly in order to let an employer know his value.

14. The woman recommends Mr White a job as a maintenance supervisor at the hospital because he wants to work _____.

15. The woman will check the award wage and give Mr White a _____ idea of how much salary he can get before she arranges an interview for him.

Section C (5 marks)

In this section, you will hear five short news items. Each item will be read only once. After each item, there will be a fifteen-second pause. During the pause, read the question and the four choices marked A, B, C and D, and decide which is the best answer. Then mark the corresponding letter on the answer sheet with a single line through the centre.

16. What's the goal of the new decision of the United States Football Association?

A. To improve the level of soccer games.

B. To ensure "equal pay for equal work".

- C. To encourage more people to play soccer.
D. To allow football players to make more money.
17. Who can benefit from Natalie Eve Garrett's book?
A. People who feel lonely in their life.
B. People who suffer from depression.
C. People who have financial trouble.
D. People who have mental disorder.
18. Why is Rafael Nadal placed in the lead in the competition for GOAT (Greatest of All Time)?
A. He is the oldest-ever champion of the French Open.
B. He won the most titles in the French Open.
C. He won the four-hour match against Novak Djokovic.
D. He has more Grand Slam titles than any other male tennis player.
19. What does village kindergarten teacher Rao Si think of her work?
A. Painstaking. B. Rewarding. C. Struggling. D. Frustrating.
20. How do the scientists research climate change in Antarctica?
A. By recording the daily activities of the penguins.
B. By examining the area's whole ecosystem.
C. By analyzing the change of the penguin population.
D. By exploring the eastern side of the Antarctic Peninsula.

Section D (10 marks)

In this section, you will hear two short passages. The passages will be read only once. After each passage, there will be a one-minute pause.

Dictation

Listen to the passage and fill in the blanks with the exact words or phrases you hear. Write the answers on the answer sheet.

Despite modern society's heavy dependence on fossil fuels for energy, most people are aware that the supply of these fuels is finite. As oil, 21. _____, becomes more costly and difficult to find, researchers are looking at alternative energy sources.

Solar panels catch energy directly from the sun and convert it into electricity. One of the world's largest solar power stations is located near Leipzig, Germany, where more than 33,000 solar panels generate enough energy to power about 1,800 homes. But unlike the burning of fossil fuels, the process used to create all that solar energy produces 22. _____.

Today, however, solar provides less than one percent of the world's energy, 23. _____ because the cost of the panels is still very high. And price is only one issue. Clouds and darkness also cause solar panels to produce less energy, which requires one to have additional power sources available.

Some scientists think the solution to this problem can be found in space—which they say is the ideal place to gather energy from the sun. With no clouds and no nighttime, a space-based solar power station could 24. _____. These stations would send the power back to the earth, which could then be turned into electricity for consumption.

Advocates of solar space stations say this technology would require a lot of money initially, but eventually it could provide continuous, clean energy that would be cheaper than other fuels. Also, unlike other energy sources, solar power from space will last as long as the sun shines, and will be able to 25. _____ on the earth all the energy they need.

Summary

Listen to the passage and complete the summary using not more than three words for each blank according to what you hear. Write the answers on the answer sheet.

The passage introduces 26. _____ tips that can help you make your listening in class more efficient.

Firstly, be ready for the message. You have to be 27. _____. Then, during the listening, you should grasp the main concepts and central ideas. Secondly, be open to 28. _____ even if you know the topic quite well. Thirdly, in order to be more involved in the listening, you'd better 29. _____ what you've listened in your mind and think about it. Fourthly, don't forget to sort out and analyze what you hear and integrate it with your 30. _____. Finally, if you don't hear or understand, don't hesitate to ask questions, which would make other students benefit too.

Part II Vocabulary & Grammar (15 marks)

There are 15 incomplete sentences in this part. For each blank there are four choices marked A, B, C and D. Choose the one that best completes the sentence. Then mark the corresponding letter on the answer sheet with a single line through the centre.

31. For decades scientists have debated how the brains of young children _____ how to communicate using language.

- A. wipe out B. set out C. take out D. figure out

32. Then he stood awkwardly beside the box, feeling _____ miserable, not knowing what to do next.

- A. finally B. utterly C. nearly D. actually

33. The problem was that strange things often happened around Harry and it was just _____ the Dursleys he didn't make them happen.

- A. no good telling B. good at telling C. afraid to tell D. hesitant to tell

34. The warming of our globe is often _____ human activity, such as the burning of fossil fuels, especially in industrialized nations.
A. depended on B. excused for C. blamed on D. judged by
35. Some friends and I went out to have a big meal yesterday and we divided the bill so that we all paid equal _____.
A. numbers B. plenty C. amounts D. quantity
36. Videotaped interviews should only be excluded if admitting them would be _____ the interest of justice.
A. similar to B. contrary to C. owing to D. subject to
37. Electricity would improve education, allow greater communication, let doctors store medicines that must stay cold, and _____.
A. do much more B. the more the better
C. far and away D. come what may
38. Jack's teacher thinks that students lose _____ when they depend on calculators, but _____ math teachers disagree.
A. something; other B. something; others
C. anything; other D. anything; others
39. _____, the flow of water was hard to control, so the water clocks were not very accurate.
A. Therefore B. Though C. However D. Otherwise
40. A transplant is an operation to move a body part, _____ a heart or a kidney, from one person to another.
A. as for B. as well as C. in addition to D. such as
41. Mr Patrick Gray's lecture at Walden Books, which was originally scheduled _____ tomorrow afternoon has been postponed _____ Tuesday evening.
A. during; on B. to; to C. for; until D. in; in
42. The copy machine _____ for several days before someone finally called for service.
A. has worked B. had worked
C. has not been working D. had not been working
43. The thief wore gloves the whole time so that his fingerprints didn't _____.
A. give him in B. give him out C. give him away D. give him up
44. —Lara, you've become very famous. Has this changed your life?
—_____ I mean, people do recognize me if I go shopping or something, but I don't actually go out very much.
A. Not very much really.
B. I bet you did.
C. I couldn't agree with you more.

D. Give me a break.

45. —How come you are walking like that?

—My ankle's killing me!

—_____ If I were you, I would lie down and put some ice on it to keep the swelling down.

A. Why not call a policeman?

B. Does it really work well?

C. Sorry to have troubled you.

D. Oh dear, you poor thing!

Part III Cloze (10 marks)

Read the following passage and fill in each blank with one word in one of the following three ways: according to the context, by using the correct form of the given word, or by using the given letter(s) of the word. Remember to write the answers on the answer sheet.

Saying Tamara Blackmore experienced culture shock when she arrived here last September is an understatement. It was more like culture trauma for this 46.

_____ (adventure) student who left Melbourne's Monash University to spend her junior year at Boston College (BC). Blackmore, 20, was joined at BC by 50

other exchange students from around the world. Like the 47. thou _____ of exchange students who enrol in American colleges each year, Blackmore 48. disc _____ there is a sea of differences between reading about and experiencing America firsthand. She felt the difference as soon as she stepped off the plane.

As soon as she landed in Boston, Blackmore could feel the tension in the air. She was about to taste a lifestyle far more hectic than the one she left. "Driving in Boston is crazy," says Blackmore. "It took me a while to get used to the roads and the driving style here. I was always afraid someone was going to hit me. It was particularly 49. _____ (trick) as the steering wheel was on the wrong side of the car. In Australia, it's on the right side."

Beyond the cars and traffic jams, Blackmore said it took a while to get used to so many people in one place, all of whom seemed like they were moving 50. _____ full speed. "There are only 18 million people in Australia spread out over an entire country," she says, "compared to more than six million people in the state of Massachusetts alone. We don't have the kind of congestion you have in Boston. There is a whole different perception of space."

The pressing problem for Blackmore was making a quick 51. _____ (adjust) to the American lifestyle that felt like it was run by a stopwatch. For this easygoing Australian, Americans seemed like perpetual-motion machines. "Americans are very time 52. _____ (orient)," Blackmore says. "Everything is done according to a schedule. They are always busy, which made me feel guilty about wanting to just sit around and 53. _____ (occasion) watch television. Australians, on the other hand, 54. val _____ their leisure time. The pace there is a lot slower because we don't feel the need to always be busy. It's not that Australians are lazy, it's just that they have a different idea of how time should be 55. _____ (spend). Back home, I used to spend a lot more time just talking to my friends."

It didn't take long for Blackmore to adjust to American rhythms. "I felt the pressure to work hard and do more because everyone was running around doing so much," she says.

Part IV Reading Comprehension (30 marks)

There are three passages in this part. Each passage is followed by several questions. Respond to the questions using the information from the passage. Remember to write the answers on the answer sheet.

Section A (10 marks)

Questions 56 to 60 are based on the following passage.

Located in the North Atlantic Ocean, Iceland is Europe's westernmost country, with the most northerly capital city in the world. Viking explorers migrated here from northern Europe in 930 A. D. when they established the world's first parliament. 56. _____

Today, Iceland has a population of just over 310,000, spread over 100,000 square kilometers. Despite its small size, there are many reasons to visit this remarkable country.

City of Culture

Most visitors' first port of call is the country's capital, Reykjavik, a small and clean city known for its colorful and stylish architecture. 57. _____ In 2000, Reykjavik was awarded the title of Europe's City of Culture, thanks to its impressive art and museum scenes, and lively nightlife.

The good news for visitors is that Iceland's temperatures are fairly mild, even in the winter when they stay at around four degrees. During winter months, nights are long, and the Northern Lights become visible, lighting up the night sky with a spectacular natural display. In summer, the country gets almost 22 hours of daylight, and native Icelanders and visitors alike enjoy partying outdoors until dawn.

Hot Springs

Iceland is one of the most volcanically active nations in the world, and there are a number of thermal (hot water) springs around the island. 58. _____ In fact, Iceland converts energy generated by these springs into electricity, which powers and heats people's homes and businesses. As a result, Iceland burns very little fossil fuel, such as oil and gas, and has some of the cleanest air in the world.

One of Iceland's most popular hot springs is the Blue Lagoon, a huge lake of bright blue seawater just outside Reykjavik. Surrounded by volcanoes and lára (熔岩) fields, the Blue Lagoon receives more than 300,000 visitors a year. After a long day's sightseeing or a long night of partying, visitors can relax both their bodies and their mind in the lagoon's steaming hot water, which has an average temperature of about 38 degrees. 59. _____

Caves

Most of the inner part of Iceland is uninhabited and accessible only by truck or other vehicle. Nevertheless, there is a range of outdoor activities to enjoy elsewhere in the country, particularly along the coasts.

One of Iceland's most popular attractions is caving. Exploring Iceland's unusual lava caves, most of which formed more than 10,000 years ago, requires only basic caving knowledge and equipment. 60. _____ The best-known ice caves are in Vatnajökull—a vast layer of ice which, at 8,000 square kilometers, is Iceland's—and Europe's—largest glacier (冰川). It also happens to be situated just above an active volcano!

Questions 56 to 60

Choose from the sentences A—G the one which best fits each gap of 56—60. There are two extra sentences which you do not need to use.

- A. All are heated naturally by underground volcanic activity.
- B. The mid-Atlantic fault that runs through Iceland is literally pulling the island apart.
- C. Ice caves, however, are more challenging and require special clothes and hiking tools.
- D. The city's downtown area is lined with shops, art galleries, cafes, and bookstores.
- E. These are a dramatic part of the scenery on one of Iceland's most impressive beaches.
- F. Some believe the waters are able to cure certain illnesses and improve skin quality.
- G. The country's national language can still be traced to the one spoken by the Vikings over 1,000 years ago.

Section B (10 marks)

Questions 61 to 65 are based on the following passage.

Six hundred years ago, China's Admiral Zheng He led a powerful fleet of trading ships on seven voyages that changed China and many parts of the world forever. On each of his journeys, Zheng He commanded more than 300 ships of 30,000 sailors, accompanied as well by hundreds of government officials, doctors, cooks, merchants, and interpreters. The fleet accumulated knowledge and wealth and spread Chinese influence all across Asia to Africa. And yet, today, Zheng He—one of the world's greatest explorers—is scarcely known in many places around the world.

By the time he was 31, in 1402, Zheng He had become one of the military's most powerful soldiers and an advisor to China's leader, who gave him an important new job: Admiral of China's Imperial Navy.

In the summer of 1405, Zheng He departed on the first of his seven voyages from the city of Nanjing, then the capital of China. His goal was to mix exploration with business and diplomacy, and to that end, he carried Chinese silk, coins, and other goods to be exchanged for foreign commodities such as spices, animals, cloth, and other products.

By the end of 1405, Zheng He's fleet had arrived in present-day Vietnam, later, he traveled to the islands of Java and Sumatra (in Indonesia), and then west toward India via Sri Lanka. On subsequent voyages, Zheng He's ships traveled further west to places such as Iran, Oman, and Yemen and ultimately to the eastern coast of Africa. By the end of his last voyage 28 years later, Zheng He had established major trading centers at ports all along the way, and China was importing and exporting goods in ports from East Asia to Africa.

Throughout their travels, Zheng He and his men were introduced to different foods, languages, customs, architecture, and scientific and religious beliefs. "How can there be such diversity in the world?" said one of the admiral's men at one point. Though he was constantly faced with the unfamiliar, Zheng He was fascinated by the cultures he visited, and he spoke often of the need to "treat distant people with kindness."

In addition to promoting trade and diplomacy, Zheng He's seven voyages also resulted in the spread of Chinese people and culture throughout Asia and beyond.

The end of Zheng He's sixth voyage in 1422 coincided with a new emperor coming to power. The country's new leader wanted to terminate all foreign exploration and to focus on China only. Before his fleet was grounded forever, though, Zheng He's fleet made one final voyage in 1431—back to Africa's east coast. On the return journey to China in 1433, Zheng He died, and it is believed that he was buried at sea just off India's southwestern coast.

Over 600 years after his voyage, Zheng He's legacy lives on. Mosques (清真寺) in Indonesia are named after him. In some places in Southeast Asia, he's considered a god and there are festivals that celebrate his life.

Questions 61 to 65

Answer the following questions with the information given in the passage.

61. Who else were on Zheng He's ships besides the sailors?
62. What is Paragraph 4 mainly about?
63. How did Zheng He think of the different cultures he experienced during his travels?
64. Why did China's foreign exploration stop in 1422?
65. Where was Zheng He believed to be buried?

Section C (10 marks)

Questions 66 to 70 are based on the following passage.

Best known for its spotted coat and long distinctive tail, the snow leopard (雪豹) is one of the world's most secretive animals. These elusive cats can only be found high in the remote, mountainous regions of Central Asia. For this reason, and because they hunt primarily at night, they are very rarely seen.

Snow leopards have been officially protected since 1975, but enforcing this law has proven difficult. Many continue to be killed for their fur and body parts, which are worth a fortune on the black market. In recent years, though, conflict with local farmers has also led to a number of snow leopard deaths. This is because the big cats kill the farmers' animals, and drag the bodies away to eat high up in the mountains.

As a result of these pressures, the current snow leopard population is estimated at only 4,000 to 7,000, and some fear that the actual number may already have dropped below 3,500. The only way to reverse (逆转) this trend and bring these cats back from near extinction, say conservationists, is to make them more valuable alive than dead.

Because farming is difficult in Central Asia's cold, dry landscape, traditional cultures depend mostly on livestock (mainly sheep and goats) to survive in these mountainous regions. At night, when snow leopards hunt, farmers' animals are in danger of snow leopard attacks. Losing only a few animals can push a family into desperate poverty. To address this problem, local leaders have called for an end to snow leopard killings, saying that these wild animals have the right to exist peacefully. They've also tried to convince people that the leopards are quite rare, and thus it is important to protect them.

Financial incentives are also helping to slow snow leopard killings. The organization Snow Leopard Conservancy-India has established Himalayan Homestays, a program that sends visitors to the region to farmers' houses. For a clean room and bed, meals with the family, and an introduction to their culture, visitors pay a few dollars a night. Having guests once every two weeks through the tourist season provides the farmers with enough income to replace the animals lost to snow leopards. In addition, Homestays helps farmers build protective fences that keep out snow leopards. The organization also conducts environmental classes at village schools, and trains Homestays members as nature guides, available for hire. In exchange, the farmers agree not to kill snow leopards.

In Mongolia, a project called Snow Leopard Enterprises (SLE) helps farmer communities earn extra money in exchange for their promise to protect the endangered cat. Women in Mongolian farmer communities make a variety of products—yarn for making clothes, decorative floor rugs, and toys—using the wool from their herds. SLE buys these items from herding families and sells them abroad.

Farmers must agree to protect the snow leopards and to encourage neighbors to do the same.

Questions 66 to 70

Complete the summary below with the information from the passage, using not more than three words for each blank.

The snow leopard is widely but thinly distributed in the 66. _____ areas of Central Asia and is threatened by extinction for many reasons. Some of them are killed for their fur and body parts. And some of them are killed by local farmers because they 67. _____ domestic livestock. Many people devote themselves to the protection of these beautiful cats. Local leaders call on the farmers to stop killing snow leopards. And a project called Himalayan Homestays that is developed by Snow Leopard Conservancy-India helps farmers in the area 68. _____ by having guests stay in their houses. Farmers who are involved in this project have to promise they wouldn't kill snow leopards any more. There is another project, Snow Leopard Enterprises (SLE), in 69. _____. As long as farmers agree not to kill leopards, SLE would 70. _____. Both projects are now doing well.

Part V Translation (15 marks)

Section A (5 marks)

Translate the following paragraph into Chinese. Remember to write the answers on the answer sheet.

71. Ever since artists had taken to painting pictures of landscapes, in the 18th century, they had made sketches on the spot, out of doors. But it didn't occur to them to paint the final picture itself out of doors. What you did out of doors was the raw material for your painting. "Proper" painting was something you did in your studio, with all your paints and equipment at hand. But when the Impressionist (印象派的) painters began to experiment with colour and ways to show light, they found they wanted to work out of doors. It wasn't just a question of the light. They felt that somehow work done out of doors was more "honest" and "true".

Section B (10 marks)

Translate the following paragraph into English. Remember to write the answer on the answer sheet.

72. 小时候, 阿尔伯特·爱因斯坦说话很慢。在回答一个问题前, 他要想很长时间, 他的父母害怕他不正常。1885年, 阿尔伯特上学了, 但是他立刻就开始讨厌上学了。课程都很枯燥, 学生们被迫完全记忆和重复老师讲的内容。幸运的是, 阿尔伯特在科学和数学

上出类拔萃，因为他对这些科目有天然的兴趣，但是另外一些科目对他来说就很困难了。

Part VI IQ Test (10 marks)

There are five IQ Test questions in this part. Write the answers on the answer sheet.

73. Fill in the letters in Picture 1 and Picture 2 to form two words which are antonyms, clockwise or anti-clockwise. What are the two words?

Picture 1

Picture 2

74. Which of the following is not a ballroom dance?

waltz, hornpipe, foxtrot, polka, quickstep

75.

When the above is folded to form a cube, which of the following is the only one that can be produced?

A

B

C

D

E

76. What number should replace the question mark?

77. Several bicycles have been stolen in town. It is the work of one person and there are three suspects. Their statements are below. The statement by the guilty person is false; the other two statements are true. Who is guilty?

- A. C did it.
- B. A's statement is false.
- C. B's statement is true.

Part VII Error Correction (10 marks)

There are 10 errors altogether in the following passage. The errors are: missing words, unnecessary words and wrong words. Please correct them as follows: for a missing word, mark its position with the symbol “^” and write it; for an unnecessary word, cross it out with the symbol “\”; for a wrong word, underline it and write the correct word. An example of how to correct the error is provided below. Write the answers on the answer sheet.

For example:

One of my favorite writers are Charlotte Brontë. She was born in the early nineteenth is century when women had far fewer opportunities ^ they have now. She lived in a than small village in Yorkshire and she took great pleasure in walking on the moors where near her home.

Birds do it. Cats do it. And the Spanish especially do it—every day, in the broad daylight. They nap. Grown adults—executives, teachers, civil servants—wink off in the middle of a workday. From 1 or 2 o'clock to 4:30 and so every afternoon, people stop working for a stroll home, a leisure meal, and a short sleep. Common Market technocrats have been informed the Spanish that this is not the way things will get done in a unify Europe.

At a time which productivity is the world's largest religion, the nap tradition lives in. In Spain, work operates under the command of life, instead of the other way around. No task is so critical which it can't wait a couple of hours while you attend to more important matters like eating, relaxing, or catching up on sleep. When the midday break hits, offices are empty and streets are clear. Puzzled foreigners quickly learn that they have entered a new circadian (生理节奏的) order.

Unlike the average lunch break, the nap is a true break for everything because there is no choice but to come a full and complete stop. While climate is still a factor, the nap lifestyle today is driven primarily by the social imperative of Spanish life, which places an equal, if not greater, emphasis on life outside the office.

Part VIII Writing (30 marks)

Section A (10 marks)

Clackford Bus Company carried out a survey to investigate the popularity of the various types of transport that people use to commute. 500 people were surveyed and the diagram below showed the result.

Read the data in the diagram and write a 120-word report on the answer sheet.

Section B (20 marks)

Nowadays, many people argue that people in certain professions, like sports stars, actors and actresses earn too much. However, professionals who are essential to society are usually at the bottom of the pay league. How do you feel about it?

Write a 180-word essay to express your opinions. Write the essay on the answer sheet.