Section B

Conversation One

W Barton Seaver is a chef and conservationist who wants our help to save the oceans. He thinks that the choices we make for dinner have a direct impact on the ocean's health. Seaver, thanks for coming to our programme, so should people stop eating seafood?

M (6) People should definitely not stop eating seafood altogether. There're certain species that have been severely overfished and that people should avoid eating for environmental reasons. But I believe we can save the oceans while continuing to enjoy seafood. For example, some types of seafood, such as Alaskan salmon, come from well-managed fisheries. And others, such as farmed mussels and oysters, actually help to restore declining wild populations and clean up polluted waters.

W What kind of seafood should people eat? And what should they not eat?

M (8) My general advice is to eat fish and shellfish that are low on the food chain and that can be harvested with minimal impact on the environment. Some examples include farmed mussels, clams and oysters, sardines and herring. People should not eat the bigger fish of the sea, like tuna, shark and swordfish.

W Why did you choose to dedicate your life to the ocean?

M I believe the next great advance in human knowledge will come not from new discoveries, but rather from learning how we relate to our natural world. Humans are an essential part of nature, yet they don't have a very strong relationship with the world around them. (9) I have dedicated myself to helping people understand our place on this planet through the foods we eat.

W You're so great. Why do you believe people should care about the health of the oceans?

M The health of the oceans is directly linked to the health of people. (10) The ocean provides most of the air we breathe. It has a big effect on the weather that we rely on for crops and food production. It also provides a necessary and vital diet for billions of people on the planet. So I don't usually say I'm trying to save the oceans. I prefer to say I'm trying to save the vital things that we rely on the oceans for.

Conversation Two

- W Professor Johnson, can I talk to you for a minute?
- M Of course, Linda. What can I do for you?
- W Well, I just finished reading your newest book on how to write about the natural world, and I thought it was great.
- M I'm glad you liked it.
- W You know, before I picked up your book, I never thought of nature writing as a specific genre.
- M Not many people do. But really, learning how to describe the natural world is important to all forms of writing. (11) In my book, I stressed that nature writing almost exclusively depends on using your five senses of sight, hearing, smell, touch and taste. The whole purpose of nature writing is to paint a picture of the world around you. If you think about it, creative writing professors teach their students the same things concerning imagery.
- W That may be true, but (12) most of my friends in creative writing class say that one of their big problems is that they don't use enough description in their works.
- M That's not surprising. Many writing students have trouble because it's hard to put the description of the world around them into words.
- W I always had trouble using imagery in my writing until I read your book. After doing some of the exercises you suggested, I feel like my writing has improved some.
- M That's wonderful. I think if students practiced writing about the natural world, they'd find it much easier to put images into writing.
- W That's one of the reasons I'd talk to you. Since I know this is the time when you professors start planning what classes you want to teach next term, (13) I wanted you to consider forming a class on nature writing. We could use the book you wrote as the class textbook.
- M I'm flattered that you think so. (14) I suggested teaching a class on nature writing over two semesters ago, but the department head didn't believe it would be popular with students.
- W Actually I know many students who want to sign up for it.
- M (15) If you could get thirty students to send letters to the department head expressing support for a nature writing course, it might convince him to approve one.

Section D

Dictation

There are more than 19,000 people per square mile in the small nation of Singapore. People on the island work an average of 70 hours per week. The country has strict laws, for example, (21) against littering, graffiti, and even for not flushing a toilet. But according to the World Database of Happiness, Singapore is the happiest country in Asia. Why?

One reason for Singapore's happiness is that the government provides (22) the basic necessities, such as jobs and housing. There is almost no poverty, and Singapore has one of the lowest levels of unemployment in the world. The government creates jobs for people who are unemployed. It “tops up” poorer people’s income so everyone can have a (23) minimum standard living. The government also offers tax breaks to people who look after aging parents. This may be why 84 percent of older people live with their children. The result is a lot of closely connected families with roughly equal standards of living.

People may not all be happy about laws, but they are generally happy with the results—they don’t step in litter, the public toilets work, and the streets are safe and clean. So for Singaporeans, it seems that living in a (24) secure, clean, and safe place may be more important than having a lot of personal freedom. As Dr. Tan Ern Ser of Singapore’s Institute of Policy Studies explains, “If you are (25) hopeful and confident of getting what you want in life, then you are happy.”

Summary

When you’re at work, do you ever get angry? Yes? Then it’s probably because of your manager. (26) Bad management causes more people to lose their temper at work than any other reason. Almost four out of ten people across Europe said that poor management was the issue that makes them most angry about their jobs. Read our top tips to help you deal with an angry boss.

(27) (28) Some managers use fear as a management technique. They think it will make people respect them, although it just makes people want to leave their jobs.

(29) Bosses like to get angry with new staff, to see if they can bully them. If you are new to a job, you need to work out if the anger is personal or business. You need to learn not to take things too personally.

Learn what are the particular things that make your boss angry. Does he go crazy when colleagues arrive late for work? Does he hate it when a job is not finished on time?

Sometimes the things you do will make other people angry. Learn to watch their reactions so that you can stop in time. If a colleague asks you to go outside for a fight, then you know you have gone too far!

Try breathing techniques to help you calm down. If someone is shouting at you, try imagining that you are blowing up a balloon. (30) This allows your breathing to slow down and means you are less likely to get angry.

81. causes→caused

解析 该句的意思是“大火很快就失去了控制, 因为那天的大风导致它迅速蔓延”。根据时态可知, 此处应用一般过去时, 因此需将 causes 改为 caused。

82. know→known

解析 该句的意思是“现在被称为伦敦大火的这场火持续燃烧了四天”。根据句意可知, 此处表示被动, 应用过去分词, be known as 翻译为“因为……而出名”, 因此需将 know 改为 known。

83. by ∧ time→the

IQ Test

(10 marks)

87. R

解析 题目问的是下一个会出现的字母。根据字母顺序表,A,D,H,K,O 是按照分别隔 2 和 3 的顺序出现的,根据此规律,下一个字母应该是 O 后隔两个字母,故填入 R。

88. 75

解析 题目问的是图中的问号对应的数字。从图中的规律可知,左下方数字与中间数字相乘等于左上方数字、右上方数字与右下方数字的组合,即 $6 * 41$ 刚好等于数字 2,4,6 构成的 246; $7 * 52$ 刚好等于数字 3,6,4 构成的 364,因此同理可得 $5 * ? = 375$,故问号处填入 75。

89. C

解析 题目问的是哪个图案跟其他几个不同。用假设法做,假设每个元素是每隔一组就是往右平移一格。以第一横排的中间黑色“火箭”块为例,由第一组到第二组是向右平移一格,同理,第一个空心三角形也是向右平移一格,圆形也是由最右侧平移后挪到了最左侧,即整体是向右平移的,由此检测出第三个选项不符合规律。

90. MAMMAL/ mammal (哺乳动物)

解析 题目问的是用六个字母组成一个单词,并使之适用下面的句子。cheetah 意为“猎豹”,是一种动物,根据所给字母提示,故填入 mammal (哺乳动物)。

91. 一语中的,一针见血

解析 题目问的是加下划线的短语的中文意思。hit the nail on the head,起源于罗马,形容敲钉子的时候得正敲在钉子头部才能钉准,引申为切中要害,故答案是“一语中的,一针见血”。

Internet Users Tend to be Younger in China

As is shown in the chart above, nowadays people of different ages and levels of education are all Internet users by means of various devices. In terms of age groups, people who are above 10 begin to be more exposed to the Internet, especially those who are between 30 to 39, reaching the peak point of 20.5%. From the aspect of education, we can find that students from primary schools, junior middle schools and high schools contribute greatly to the use of the Internet. And furthermore, the mobile phone is the most widely used device compared to other ones.

There are two factors responsible for the situation. Firstly, due to the development of technology and people's living standard, more and more people are accessible to the digital equipments, especially mobile phones. Moreover, a great increasing number of teenagers are addicted to computer games and the virtual reality, and that's why Internet users tend to be younger.

Working for Several Jobs is Becoming a Fashion

In the past, it was common for people to have a single career to make a living, which is understandable because of limited working chances. But the barriers have been removed and many people have started having a career with more than one jobs at a time. It is they that are called Slash Youth. As far as I can see, there are two main reasons for the situation.

Firstly, a college degree can no longer provide job security to people in this competitive world, so further education will be continued throughout the life, which can offer them more job opportunities. Secondly, a salary from a typical job is not enough to cover the daily expenditure, so people have to work for other jobs to make ends meet.

In conclusion, many people will find it hard to survive today with just a single career. Thus, they tend to work for several jobs to earn as much money as they can.
