Read the following passage and fill in the blanks with the correct forms of 5 words or phrases out of the 7 given in the box. Remember to write the answers on the answer sheet.

without, stand out, find, notice, with, distant, way

Britain has got some of the most famous landmarks in the world: Big Ben, Stonehenge and the White Cliffs of Dover are just some of the most popular. But what about these bright red post boxes? From large city centres to small villages, these boxes are (41) _____ throughout the country. The colour of these boxes was also used for London buses and telephone boxes in the past. The colour allows people to see these objects clearly from a (42) _____ and makes it easy for people to recognise them.

But not all cities use this colour for objects that need to (43) _____. In New York, as well as in many other places in the world, yellow is more popular. If you're looking for a taxi rank, for example, you should look out for a long line of yellow cars— or "cabs" as they call them in the US. School buses are also painted yellow to make them (44) _____. But if you've been feeling unwell lately, then green is the colour to look for. That's because the most common sign outside a chemist's is a green cross. Green is also important when driving and walking in cities. It's the colour on traffic lights that tells us it's safe to go. (45)_____these three important colours, daily life in big crowded cities would be impossible.

Section B (5 marks)

Read the following passage and fill in each blank with one word in one of the following three ways: according to the context, by using the correct form of the given word(s) , or by using the given letter(s) of the word. Write the answers on the answer sheet.

One of the most amazing phenomena of the natural world is the ability of fish, particularly the salmon, to return to the exact stream of their birth after several years at sea. Although the precise method by which they find their way back is (46)_____(know), one scientist, Megan McPhee, research assistant professor at the University of Montana, has made some important discovery about this phenomenon.

According to Dr McPhee, (47)_____is based at the Flathead Lake Biological Station, salmon use some kind of “ map and compass” system. It appears that the fish take information from several different (48) env_____indicators such as the sun's position, water temperature, the earth's magnetic field and the length of day. These physical factors allow the fish to reach the mouth of the river and complete the first part of their journey.

The way in which the fish continue is better (49)_____(understand). When they reach freshwater, it is their sense of smell that enables them to get “home”. They are able to complete their incredible journey by heading for the smells that were familiar during the beginning of their lives (50) be_____they left for the open sea.

Part IV Reading Comprehension (30 marks)

There are three passages in this part. Each passage is followed by several questions. Respond to the questions using information from the passage. Remember to write the answers on the answer sheet.

Section A (10 marks)

Questions 51—55 are based on the following passage.

Everybody enjoys winning. However, the concept of victory is so mysterious. Those who are successful make it seem so simple that we are all curious about how it is done.(51)_____ Here are a few pieces of success:

A reporter once asked a bank president what the secret of his success was. “Two words,” said the bank president. “Right decisions,” (52)_____ “Experience.” Hoping for a more satisfying answer, the reporter asked him how he got his experience. “Two words,” said the bank president. “Wrong decisions!”

In another interview, a farmer who grew award- winning corn revealed that he shared his best seeds with his neighbours. (53)_____ “I know it seems irrational (不合逻辑的), but if I don't share, then the risk is greater,” explained the farmer. “ When the wind picks up pollen from the com, it blows it from field to field. If my neighbours grow bad corn, I will too. Unless I help them, I won't be able to grow good com. We are all connected.”

(54)_____ “Nobody will buy shoes here,” said the first salesman confidently. “ They don’t wear them.” “ We will have sold thousands of shoes by the end of the year,” reported the second sales-man, a winner by nature. “They are all bare-foot!”

In a fable by cartoonist James Thurber, there was a little moth that fell in love with a star. “If I were you, I wouldn’t set such an unrealistic goal,” said his mother. “You will be much happier if you fall in love with a candle.” “I’m going to reach my star!” said the little moth while the other moths made fun of him. Unaffected by their laughter, the dreamy moth left. (55)_____ The moth must have been miles and miles away when he looked down and realized that he was the only moth of his family that was still alive. “Without you I wouldn’t exist now!” the moth said to the beloved star that had saved his life.

Questions 51—55

Choose the one which best fits each gap of 51—55 from the sentences A—G . There are two extra sentences which you do not need to use.

- A. The reporter was surprised that the farmer was risking being outdone by his neighbours.
- B. He kept flying up high as the other moths below were getting burned by candles and street lights.
- C. Perhaps that's why we love success stories.
- D. When asked how he learned to make these, the bank president gave a one-word response.
- E. Their stories make us enthusiastic about winning.
- F. He liked challenges when competing.
- G. A shoemaker once sent two salesmen to investigate the market of a developing country.

Section B (10 marks)

Questions 56—60 are based on the following passage.

It’s not just people who like living in the city. Some animals prefer city life, too!

In a capital city like London, wild animals are probably not the first thing you expect to see. However, a lot of wildlife makes its home here. A wide variety of wildlife, from small animals, birds and insects to quite large creatures like foxes are found in this busy city.

City life attracts animals because they are safer there, far away from the other creatures that naturally kill them. There is also plenty of food for them in cities. Animals such as foxes search rubbish bins for food, and many people feed wild birds in their gardens so that even when it snows, they can find something to eat. Not only wild birds, but also squirrels benefit, as they steal bird food. Although bird lovers don't feed these funny little animals, their numbers keep growing. The grey squirrel, which was only brought to Britain just over a hundred years ago, is now the most commonly seen wild animal in London. One of the best places to see them is in a central London park. They come down from the trees and sometimes even come near people who feed them.

Foxes, too, are enjoying the benefits of the city. In fact, these animals, the size of small dogs, are becoming a bit too common. They are less shy than they used to be, possibly because there are some people who feed them. Although foxes almost never go near people, they have, very rarely, entered homes and bitten small children who were asleep!

One of the most surprising new arrivals in London is the peregrine falcon, one of the fastest birds in the world. Since the late 1990s, they have become quite common in London. Instead of their traditional homes on lonely cliffs, they are now making their nests high up on London's bridges and tall buildings. Smaller birds, like pigeons, become their food. The falcons fly down from a height at great speed and use their strong claws to catch pigeons in mid-air.

Questions 56—60

Answer the following questions with the information given in the passage.

56. Why do the animals like to live in cities?
57. When was the grey squirrel brought to Britain?
58. What happens to foxes after people feed them?
59. Where did the peregrine falcons use to make their nests?
60. What is the main point of the passage?

Section C (10 marks)

Questions 61—65 are based on the following passage.

News gathering and reporting is the most important and viable way to exchange information. It always has been. From the slow dissemination (传播) of news by the town crier to the nearly instantaneous (瞬间发生的) exchange on the Internet, people want to know what is going on in their neighbourhoods and across the oceans.

There are some qualities which are much more important and impact the success of a news reporter and their craft. One of them is general intelligence. It is not necessary to be a genius, but general intelligence helps a reporter develop a growing base of knowledge. Expanding one's knowledge comes from another important and needed quality—curiosity. A reporter needs to have an insatiable (无法满足的) curiosity about the world, its inhabitants, and simple day- to- day activities. Next, objectivity in reporting is a no-brainer. Unbiased and prejudice- free journalism is part of news reporting. It is also important for reporters to know the facts of the story and report only the facts. Embellishing or neglecting facts is qualities of storytellers, not reporters.

Lastly, reporters should have a general understanding of the subject being reported. It is difficult, if not possible, to effectively report on a subject that is beyond the reporter's comprehension. And, of course, never forget to be a reporter delivering special news.

Questions 61—65

Complete the summary below with information from the passage, using no more than three words for each blank.

People have always been interested in the supplying of (61)_____. We want to know what is going on in the world. This is why a reporter is an important job. As a reporter, they should have some qualities. At first, (62)_____ and curiosity are necessary, which both help reporters expand their knowledge. And they must get all the facts without (63)_____ parts of the story. Then they must report them back with (64)_____, without prejudice. Lastly, reporters should also have a general (65)_____ of the subject being reported and deliver special news.
